

JETSETTER

50 States of Cocktails: Where to Drink (With a View) Across America This Summer

Nothing has us pining more for a refreshing drink than the long, hot days of August. Thankfully, America is absolutely brimming with fabulous cocktail dens, hometown breweries, and rooftop bars where you can toast the season in style. From an open-air deck on a Delaware beach to a swanky loft in New Orleans, here are 50 spots (and 50 drinks) to try this summer in each state.

By Laura Itzkowitz and Stefanie Waldek

By Jetsetter August 15, 2018

Pennsylvania: Assembly Rooftop at the Logan, Philadelphia

As far as views in Philly go, it doesn't get much better than the Logan Philadelphia's Assembly Rooftop Lounge, whose terrace affords sweeping views of Logan Square, Benjamin Franklin Parkway, and the Philadelphia Museum of Art with its famous staircase (any Rocky fans out there?). Grab a group of friends and cozy up on one of the semi-circular couches surrounding the fire pits for a drink or two. On warm days, cool down with the Celery Stalked—a refreshing combination of local Bluecoat barrel-aged gin, St. Germain, and celery and lime juice.